

One of the most popular attractions at the CAMPUS FARMERS MARKET each year are the local, fresh-picked blueberries. Photo contributed by Roger Winstead.

a fresh attraction

BRICKYARD BOASTS BEST BOUNTY FROM NORTH CAROLINA FARMERS

The Brickyard has been a home to events from Agriculture Awareness Week to Shack-A-Thon. Now it's home to peanut butter, bread, cheese, lotion, fish, pasture-raised pork — all for sale. Led by Eric Ballard, a graduate in ecology education, Student Government's Sustainability Commission helped farmers give students, faculty and staff a chance to enjoy local, seasonal products. On Earth Day 2009, the first NC State farmers market kicked off on campus.

Mid-day on Wednesdays, five regular vendors sell seafood and meat, fruits and vegetables, milk and eggs, and soaps and lotions. All of the products are from North Carolina.

Place a Campus Farmers Market memory here.