

lights, camera, fashion

FASHION SHOW WOWS STUDENTS WITH INNOVATION & CREATIVITY

A collaborative effort between the College of Textiles and the College of Design, the annual Art 2 Wear fashion show showcases students' fashion collections. In 2002, students held the first Art to Wear in the Pit behind Kamphoefner Hall.

Today, Art 2 Wear sets up its catwalk each spring in either the Court of North Carolina or Reynolds Coliseum. Art to Wear celebrated its 10th anniversary with its show April 12, 2011.

Entrants from any college create a few designs to present to a judging panel that then selects 12 designers to exhibit their work in Art 2 Wear. The designers select their own models and work throughout the year to perfect their lines.

Clothes can be made out of anything, and they often are. From a dress made of peacock feathers to pants embellished with LED lights, the Art 2 Wear fashion show exhibits new and creative ways of making clothes.

Place a Art2Wear
memory here.

The designer who impressed me the most was _____