PACK GETS FIERCE TO PROTECT TUNNEL FROM RIVAL RAM INVASION

After numerous attempts by students from UNC-Chapel Hill to deface the Free Expression Tunnel by painting it Carolina blue, the senior class of 2005 had enough. They started a protection effort that evolved into the Ram Roast pep rally.

Held each year before the Carolina-State home basketball and football games, the Ram Roast is an all-night event.

The pep rally includes appearances from the coaches, players, band, cheerleaders and other student groups. After the pep rally, students participate in scavenger hunts, eat free food and paint the tunnel red.

Throughout the night, it is tradition that students make sure no vandals try to paint over the Free Expression Tunnel.

Place a Ram Roast memory here.
